The Institution

An institution of higher learning has three key responsibilities - responsibility towards its students, responsibility towards the cause of knowledge, and responsibility towards the society. Annamacharya Institute of Technology and Sciences (AITS) takes its role seriously in fulfilling these three key responsibilities. To its students AITS is not just an institution of learning but a crucible where their character and values are shaped. As a premier academic institution, the role of AITS goes beyond merely disseminating knowledge towards expanding its very boundaries. Finally, every little step, every little action that AITS takes, furthers the larger goals of the society of which it is a part. It has been an exciting journey nearing two decades. And every new day brings with it the promise and the anticipation of discovery, of opportunity and of fulfillment.
